

Climate changes in Romania: a myth or something dangerous?

by Matei Andreea Teodora

Romania has been significantly changing over the past decades and here are some examples

Sudden changes in our temperature

Romania's temperature has been crucially increased in the past decades. Over the years, we have been experiencing intense heat waves around the country. But not only intense heat waves, but also sudden transformations from heat to cold. Since 1961 until now, the average temperature has been increasing by 2 or 3 Celsius degrees. It may not seem a lot, but it is. Scientists predict that until 2050 our average temperature will increase by 4 Celsius degrees.

How does it affect the agriculture?

Really bad. Words can't describe how bad Romania's agriculture has been affected in past 5 years by the climate changes. Farmers have lost hundreds of fruits and vegetables due to extreme dry land and not only did they lose that, but also money, which they cannot get it back.

Does politic believe in climate changes?

No! It may seem shocking, but that's the reality. It's sad that to this day, some Prime Minister believes that the climate changes it's just 'a sweet dream'. Now, do Romanians believe in climate changes? Shockingly, yes. 9 out of 10 Romanians believe that climate changes are real.

How can we try and fix the climate changes?

The climate changes don't affect only Romania, but they affect the whole world, so here are a few solutions that could help our problem:

- Consume less power, water, etc.
- Instead of using our personal vehicle, we could use a bicycle or public transport like a bus
- Avoid using fossil fuels (I know it's pretty hard, but not impossible!)
- Try to go vegan or vegetarian

At the end of the day, if we want to change something, the change needs to start with us!
